

DRAUGE DISCRPTION

The Drauge are a technologically advanced four legged bird man of sorts. Compared to a human, they are small and strong with an amazing level of body control with almost no dexterity as they don't have arms or hands. Instead the have wings and four legs. They are ugly and unlikable on first impression, but, really, they aren't so bad once you know them.

The Drauge tend to have a closed door policy as a sort of default mental attitude, but rarely commit violence against others unprovoked. They're just not polite, nor are they 'politically correct.' They have an almost legendarily foul mouth and even though what they speak is often irrefutably true and obviously correct, one feels almost insulted to hear it.

They are damn smart as a species. The least intelligent healthy example of a Drauge is a bit smarter than an average human. And the brightest of them blows away any human offering.

They are, generally resistant to most toxins and illnesses, but do have one allergy that is so bad it kept their ancient ancestry on the fly for much of the year. They have big, owl-like eyes an see well in the dark. Also, their teeth are hallow and if they grab a purchase on an enemy's flesh, they let loose a terrible neuro-toxin.

The biggest kicker is that, despite all their nastiness and unattractive nature, they are slightly more likely to work together and cooperate with others in a crisis than humans.
