

LENNOR BOTOS BACKSTORY

There's just something about her. There are prettier women, even within her own caravan. Everyone agrees, there is just something about Lennor. Lennor laughs easily and often. However, she is deeply worried about her and her caravan's security. The world is not safe, the old gods seem to be closer than they used to be. As such she uses her abilities to keep everyone and herself informed about the old stories in a light hearted and entertaining way. Her interpretations are always the best. She often plays many characters using different languages. Sometimes she sings, sometimes she dances, sometimes she just talks. Always, it is entertaining and always she uses fine bolts of rare cloth to augment her tale. It's amazing what can be done by a master story teller with one bolt of cloth and a good yarn.

Physically, Lennor is tall with an average build. She's one of those women that gets more beautiful every time you look at her and her first impression isn't too bad.

She has red hair, fair skin and green eyes. There's nothing about her, particularly, that stands out as a defining feature, but when she's in a room, others seem to fade.

She is a capable diplomat and has an uncanny ability to remember minutia. Her attitude is warm and her concern is genuine. If there is a flaw in her presentation, it would be, when pressed, an almost desperate need for her caravan's safety. She does not like violence and will seek other means of conflict resolution. She is often put into decision making situations even though she knows very little of tactics and arms. She uses parables and story telling to diplomatically seduce would be aggressors and, usually, the conflict is resolved peacefully. Sometimes, the would be aggressors are so moved that her caravan picks up other newly minted wanderers.
